Live Workshop

On Tuesday morning, Buzzards had the opportunity to take part in a live workshop online which was organised by Penguin books UK and featured renowned children's book author, Nazneen Ahmed Pathak, author of City of Stolen Magic.

The workshop focused on the importance of editing written pieces of work in English, why writing is edited, as well as some useful pointers on how students can further edit their own work. There were various timed activities throughout the workshop that gave the students plenty of opportunities to edit sentences as well as whole paragraphs. All-in-all, a great workshop which the students thoroughly enjoyed and will have a positive impact on their writing compositions. We look forward to seeing the results!

Food Technology

In food technology students made some delicious Easter treats.

Sparrow Hawks and Eagles made Easter biscuits which they decorated as well as some tasty rocky road made with lots of chocolate eggs, marshmallows and shortbread biscuits. Buzzards produced fluffy chocolate sponge cakes which they also decorated along with some rocky road cakes. Star Baker for Sparrow Hawks & Eagles is Nivas Odedra and for Buzzards it is Joshua Geary.

In Early Years children were also busy making their Easter treats.....

Recipe Competition

Did you know you can save time and money by making the food you have already got go further? Families can make substantial financial savings if they waste less food.

Mrs Wakley's Climate Literacy students have been learning about food waste in their lessons. They have learnt that 40% of food grown or reared is wasted around the world and has a big carbon footprint which they have been thinking about how they can reduce.

As the finale to this work, we are launching a recipe competition where we are inviting all students to submit their own recipes they might use for any leftover food or ingredients which they have in the fridge or kitchen.

The recipes need to be brought into school by no later than Friday 21st April and winners will be announced in assembly the following week. There will be a prize for the best recipe and its presentation – one for older students at The Lodge and one for Brooke House.

Piano Star of the week is Vincent Parker for making excellent progress with practising.
